SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, I wouldn't...thank you, Senator Janssen. That's all I will ask you. I wouldn't consider myself to be in it at all. Oh, but I will ask you this, what do you think of the amendment?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Well, I don't think the amendment would work because you would be able to apply it, not operate it. You could put it to the person's chest but you would not be able to operate it.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay, so then these words would have a different meaning.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay, I thought all you had to do was put it on and push the little buttons and they jump up off the table, like I see in the movies.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Well, that would be operating it, that wouldn't be applying it.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay, and do you operate it on the person?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Yes, that's right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay, with the word "operate", I can kind of understand that. Senator Janssen, you...look, how much time do I have, Mr. Speaker?

SPEAKER WITHEM: You have about four minutes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Then, Senator Janssen, I won't have to use it with questions that I'm going to put to you, but this is what I will say. When I decide I am going to do something, I set my face like a flint, and I am as unmoving as Jehovah of the Old Testament, which Senator Jensen rejects, was reputed to be. I have spoken. I will not repent myself. I shall not change. I have said it. I meant it, and I am here to represent it, but, fortunately for you, I'm not Jehovah. I will listen to what I'm told, and the flint may soften, and the attitude may moderate, and I am all powerful when it comes to the agenda of the
